The background is a wide-angle shot of a sky at sunrise or sunset. The sun is positioned in the upper center, creating a bright, multi-colored sunburst effect with rays of light extending across the sky. The colors transition from a pale yellow near the sun to a deep, clear blue at the top and bottom edges. Wispy, light-colored clouds are scattered across the lower half of the sky. In the center of the image, there is a horizontal white rectangular box with a thin, dark, dotted border. Inside this box, the text "How do we determine the will of God?" is written in a bold, black, sans-serif font.
